ENGLAND.

The Situation of Ireland Debated by the Peers.

In the House of Lords this evening Earl Granville said the government would ask for further power to deal with violation of law in Ireland, and that a bill containing severe police regulations had been prepared and would soon be submitted.

The Duke of Richmond supported his support to such a measure, but regretted the tardiness of its introduction.

The Marquis of Salisbury said he should infer from the language of Lord Granville that the proposed bill would hardly be equal to the emergency.

After desultory remarks from other lords the House adjourned.

The Irish Question in the Commons.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Gladstone promised that the bill for the enforcement of the laws in Ireland would be introduced on Thursday of this week. It would contain the provisions of several acts passed in former years for the preservation of the public peace. It would suspend the writ of habeas corpus and provide for summary trial without a jury.

Created by the bill, such as the possession of power, plotting by night, or travelling without destination or purpose. It would compensate the victims of violence and increase the powers of the officers of justice for obtaining evidence. The bill was to remain in force for a limited time, and could be applied only to districts in which the Lord Lieutenant had proclaimed the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus. The press in districts under the operation of the law would be held amenable for offences against order.

This statement was received with uproarious applause from both sides of the House.

Mr. Gladstone said his brief announcement was all that it was thought expedient now to make.

Mr. Chichester Fortescue, Chief Secretary for Ireland, presented imperative reasons why the government had up to the present moment preferred to adhere to the letter of the law in dealing with Ireland rather than resort to another suspension of the writ of habeas corpus.

A lively debate followed on Irish affairs in general. Complaints were made of the frequency of political crimes in Ireland, and the government indignantly repelled the charge of packing them.

The American Question.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Otway, Under Foreign Secretary, explained the circumstances attending the seizure of the American brig Mary Lowell, in the West Indies, by a Spanish cruiser.

He said that no demand for indemnity could be made against England, as the vessel was captured on the high seas and not within British jurisdiction.

The Public Education Bill—The Second Reading Debate.

In the House of Commons to-day the new Education bill came up on motion for a second reading.

Mr. George Dixon, member for Birmingham, and an advanced liberal, said he felt obliged to oppose the second reading of the bill, as much as he desired free schools. At many points the measure was bad. He neglected to provide for an Educational Department in the government or for normal schools. He objected that the bill, though compulsory, made concessions to sectarian complacency, and that leaving religious questions to be determined by the board must introduce endless dissension.

Mr. Forster, the introducer of the bill, argued against the use of the Bible and the giving of religious instruction in the schools. On this rock, he said, the valuable school system of the United States was foundering, and simply because the rule was inflexible and not left to the option of each locality. The best public opinion favored the latter plan. Mr. Forster gave the length of his bill and analyzed its provisions at great length, and concluded by hoping that during this session he should see the measure fully considered and become a law.

The Congregate bill was passed and the House adjourned.

Mr. Vernon Harcourt and others denounce Mr. Forster's Education bill because it refers religious duties to local bodies for settlement.

Atlantic Cable Tolls and Profits.

In the House of Commons to-day a letter arguing strongly against the suggestion to try the experiment of reducing the rates of telegraphing through the English and French Atlantic cables to a crown for twenty words. It predicts that such a change would stop the issuing of five per cent dividends hereafter, and be likely to affect the reserve of the cable companies.

Premier Gladstone's Pledge to the Church.

Mr. Stephen Gladstone, son of the Right Honorable W. E. Gladstone, was ordained at Lambeth to-day, by the Bishop of Winchester, a minister of the church.

Aquatic Contest.

A sculler's race of one mile took place on the Tyne to-day between James Taylor and James Percy, for twenty-five pounds sterling a side.

The betting at the start was six to one on Percy. Taylor won the race by four lengths.

"Sally Gump" Jr., in an Omnibus.

The Print Mail Gazette has lately paid more attention than usual to American topics. It has editorialized to-day on female magistrates, on the political isolation of President Grant, and on the sentence imposed on Captain Eyre, of the steamship Bombay, the inadequacy of which is pointed out.

Another Victory for the National Troops—Governor Cadena Again Defeated—He is Hemmed In by General Regules.

New Orleans, March 14, 1870. The evening papers of this city publish the following despatch:—

Brownsville, Texas, March 14, 1870. A fight has taken place between General Regules and Governor De Caden, commanding the revolutionary forces near Brownsville. General Regules was defeated with great loss. General Regules took 1,000 prisoners, among them many officers. At last the Government forces were victorious, and would have to defeat General Regules or lose his own army.

Military Review.

Madrid, March 14, 1870. Marshal Prim reviewed the volunteers of Madrid to-day. He was received with great enthusiasm.

YACHTING.

Chance of a Race Between the Sappho and Cambria.

LONDON, March 14, 1870. Mr. Douglass, with the view of bringing the Ashbury correspondence to a decisive issue, finally agrees that his yacht, the Sappho, shall race Mr. Ashbury's yacht, the Cambria, the course to be sixty miles dead to windward outward and return to the point of starting.

No allowance for time to be mentioned in the agreement.

FRANCE.

The Papal Question in the Cabinet—Imperial Anxiety.

PARIS, March 14, 1870. Differences have arisen in the Cabinet on the policy to be pursued towards Rome. It is known that Count Daru is in favor of energetic measures, to which M. Olivier is opposed. M. Segris sides with Olivier, and M. Buffet with Count Daru.

The question is simply a Cabinet matter, and may result in the withdrawal of Count Daru.

The journals announce that the Emperor has sent Prince Napoleon to consult with M. Olivier and endeavor to bring the Ministers to one mind on the subject.

The Olivier-Bonaparte Policy.

LONDON, March 14, 1870. A Paris correspondent of the London Telegraph says that M. Emile Olivier announces unofficially an immediate liberalization of the imperial policy.

The French Minister from London.

PARIS, March 14, 1870. The Marquis de la Vallette, Minister to Great Britain, has arrived in Paris.

Smallpox Prevalent in Paris.

PARIS, March 14, 1870. The smallpox still prevails in different quarters of the city.

ROME.

Napoleon's Note—Important Lay Position.

PARIS, March 14, 1870. Despatches from Rome confirm the report of the demand made by France for representation in the Council.

The publication of the twenty-one canons of the Church renders inevitable a change in the attitude of France, as in the abstract they violate, it is said, the principles of the government and society, and are hostile to the wishes expressed by Emperor Napoleon in his speech to the French Chambers.

The Anti-Infantilists.

LONDON, March 14, 1870. The party at Rome adverse to Papal pretensions is gathering strength daily.

The Infidelity Vote Muster.

PARIS, March 14, 1870. A Rome despatch of to-day's date states that 410 votes are now sure for the papal infidelity dogma in the Ecclesiastical Council.

The Onoda Disaster—Present Sentence of Captain Eyre.

LONDON, March 14, 1870. Later despatches from Hong Kong announce that the captain of the Bombay, which ran down the Onoda, has been suspended, not on account of the collision, but because he neglected to inform himself of the seriousness of the damage that had been entailed, and because he took no measures to preserve the lives of the drowning men.

AFRICA.

French Rule and Policy in Algeria.

PARIS, March 14, 1870. A telegraphic despatch from Algeria announces that Marshal McMahon, Governor General of Algeria, has tendered his resignation to the Emperor.

It is supposed that the recent discussion in the Corps Legislatif on the administration of Algeria has caused the Marshal to take this step.

CUBA.

Calling an American Consul to Account—Insolence of a Spanish Club—Another Outrage in Santiago de Cuba—Intelligence from Nuevitas.

HAVANA, March 14, 1870. News received in this city from Santiago de Cuba, dated the 9th inst., says that a committee from the Spanish Club waited on Mr. Phillips, late acting Consul for the United States, for the purpose of questioning him relative to an official despatch recently published in the American papers. Mr. Phillips denied the authenticity of the despatch, and signed a communication repudiating the statements contained in it. The letter was published this morning, warning injury. Mr. Phillips took passage in the French steamer on the 8th for Jamaica. The government secretary and the British Consul accompanied him to the wharf, but no demonstration was made.

Advices from Nuevitas March 12 state that General Puello arrived at Baga on the 11th, after having visited Guaimaro, Cascorro and Sabana. No fighting reported. General Goyeneche is fortifying the places above mentioned. From six to eight hundred persons have presented themselves to the authorities within the last few days.

Affairs in the Central Departments—Movements of Puello and Goyeneche—General Jordan's Headquarters—Reported Skirmishes—De Rodas Liberates Free Masons Confined in Prison on Bail.

HAVANA, March 14, 1870. Late advices from Nuevitas have been received. General Goyeneche had arrived at Cascorro, and would soon march on the town of Guaimaro. General Puello's forces occupy the towns of Sabana and San Miguel, and were erecting fortifications. Cascorro was also being fortified.

The insurgent General Jordan's headquarters were at Magarabomba last week, but they have since been moved, and are now at Banao. General Jordan lately sent 600 of the Canagay insurgents towards the Cinco Villas district, but when near Remedios they were met by the Spaniards and twenty-seven of their number killed and their advance was stopped. The Spaniards lost one man killed and ten wounded.

The insurgents, in superior numbers, lately attacked Fort Charcas, but were repulsed by the garrison, composed of colored freemen from Havana. It is reported that but eleven remain of the Canagay insurgents, and they are moving towards Batabano. Many families are presenting themselves to the Spanish authorities and claiming protection. The number of insurgents killed in the late attack on the town of the Cinco Villas district was nineteen, instead of 100, as previously reported.

Viscount, a Santa Cruz Portuguese, who came here as a corporal in the Madrid volunteers, was executed to-day for attempting to incite the soldiers to desert and join the insurgents.

Captain General De Rodas has authorized the Prosecution Attorney of Havana to release on bail the members of the Masonic fraternity who were imprisoned for holding a meeting contrary to his late order forbidding the same.

It is officially announced that the West India and Panama cables will be laid by the latter part of April.

THE CITY OF BOSTON.

IS SHE STILL AFLOAT OR LOST?

A Steamer Sighted in Mid Ocean in a Gale—Her Signal Denotes That Her Machinery Was Broken Down—Was She the City of Boston?—The Steamer Not at Falmouth—Public Confidence in Her Safety Shaken.

LIVERPOOL, March 14, 1870. The bark Mary Johnston, from Bahia, Brazil, arrived at this port to-day. Her captain reports that on the 11th of February, in latitude 50 degrees north and longitude 24 degrees west, passed a large steamer, which was to windward and to the northeast. She displayed the British colors and a signal to denote that her machinery was broken down. She had two white stripes and one red on her funnel, about two-thirds of the way up, and the captain thinks she may have been the missing steamer City of Boston. The gale was very heavy at the time, and the Johnston was not able to stop or get near enough to make closer observations.

Opinion of the Owners on the Probability of the Steamer Sighted Being the City of Boston.

The human line authorities in New York state that the funnels of her ships are not marked in the manner described above, but hope that owing to the great distance the captain of the Johnston may have been mistaken in his observations. The locality given is precisely where the City of Boston ought to have been on the date given. While the agents are of opinion that the steamer was one of the Atlantic freight line they admit the possibility of its being the Boston.

The Steamer Not at Falmouth Up to February 26—Public Confidence in Her Safety Shaken in London.

LONDON, March 14, 1870. A vessel has just arrived here from Falmouth, which port she left on Saturday, the 25th of February. Up to that time nothing had been heard there of the missing steamer City of Boston. The public confidence in the ultimate safety of the ship has been sensibly shaken by the receipt of this unfavorable intelligence. The Azores were regarded in some quarters as the last hope.

HORRIBLE MURDER IN OHIO.

A Woman Butchered in Mansfield—Frightful Appearance of the Dead—No Clue to the Murderer—A Reward Offered for His Apprehension—Particulars of the Tragedy.

MANSFIELD, Ohio, March 14, 1870. The inhabitants of this quiet town were thrown into great excitement on Saturday morning last by a rumor that one of the most horrible murders on record in this State had been perpetrated in their midst. Your correspondent, who had just finished his breakfast when he heard of the rumor, visited the scene with a view to gaining such reliable information as could be obtained at the moment.

By the aid of a citizen who was on the scene, we reached the house. The house is situated on a line running at angles with the main street, on a line with the railroad, and in the rear of the United States Hotel. It is a double one-story frame building, with an attic. One side of the house is occupied by a family of negroes, and in the other dwelt the victim of the murder. The body lay in the attic, on entering which a most sickening scene presented itself. On a bed in the right-hand corner of the apartment lay the unfortunate woman, drenched in her blood. Her wounds were numerous and horrible to gaze upon. The throat was cut from ear to ear; on the right side of the neck there was a deep gash; on the upper part of the neck there was a ghastly wound, and there was a deep cut in the right side of the face, laying open the cheek from the angle of the jaw and exposing the teeth to view. In inflicting this wound the assassin had thrust his knife into the victim's mouth, nearly severing the tongue, and drawing it out by some means as it protruded from between the lips, which were drawn up and contorted as from agony. Besides these wounds, any of which was serious enough to cause death, the least in human form had actually been mutilated. A large incision had been made in her abdomen, from which the entrails, mangled and cut, gushed out. It is impossible to describe the horrible horror of the scene. The blood-soaked room, on the floor and on the furniture, the bedclothing was drenched with the gore.

There is no doubt whatever upon the ill-fated creature struggled desperately for her life. The appearance of the room indicated that her assassin had overcome her resistance.
